RE: Proceeding 17-108

Dear Sirs,

I'm writing to urge you to continue to treat the internet and internet access under Title II of the Communications Act.

Just a few years ago, the internet was treated under Title I. The public became deeply concerned about the possibility that internet providers could, under Title I, play favorites, for instance by not offering access to Google services in favor of their own competing services, no matter whether I as the consumer wanted access to those Google services. Your response was to finally classify the internet pipes as entitled to Title II protections.

The public feel no different about this issue today. WE WANT NET NEUTRALITY. As with a telephone, I don't want my provider (I don't even have a choice of provider, only 1 offers service in my area of NY) deciding what services or who I can talk to thru the pipes that I rent from them. Please DO NOT RECLASSIFY INTERNET PROVIDERS UNDER TITLE I, KEEP THEM CLASSIFIED UNDER TITLE II.

Thank you.

Sincerely yours,
